1968

HENRY O. KELLEY

Framingham South High School

Graduation Exercises

Bowditch Field June 6, 1968

VENIMUS, VIDIMUS, VICIMUS

WE CAME. Four years ago, in September, 1964, we, the class of 1968, entered Framingham South High School as innocent, wide-eyed freshmen. Little did we realize what was ahead of us: four of the happiest and most fulfilling years of our lives. We were to leave an indelible mark with all our achievements -- scholastic, athletic, and social.

WE SAW. As freshmen we came and we saw what was happening in this new world all around us. 1964 was a presidential election year, and a mock election confronted us in our first few months. For many, this was an awakening to the political situation which had hitherto been unknown. But we weren't the only ones to be confronted with a new experience. The rest of the school was confronted with us. Due to our large numbers, rooms, such as the girls' and boys' dressing rooms, had to be utilized as classrooms to accommodate us. We also brought into the school the new French program which had started in our fourth grade classes. Many upperclassmen must have been amazed and humiliated when freshmen could speak French as well as they.

We really began to feel a part of the school when we were allowed to attend the football rallies and show our school spirit. (A year later we realized how lucky we had been when the next freshman class and succeeding ones were denied this privilege.) And then there was more bustle of school activity and spirit as everyone participated in the candy sale, Christmas projects, and Red Cross Drive. Of course, our class sold more fudge than anyone else! Remember, as we all innocently trudged out of school lugging our ten or twenty pounds while the seniors scoffed at us? But we didn't mind. We were doing something for our school and showing that we were the greatest class with the greatest spirit.

And then we were sophomores--no longer were we low men on the totem pole. It was a whirlwind year of activity, starting with our football team winning the Bay State League title. Later, to amuse the English teacher, we spent many an hour writing about our gloriously exciting lives in our sophomore autobiographies. Then there was the delicious odor of formaldehyde emanating from our clothes as we devotedly cut up frogs in our biology classes. The science department had instilled in us such a craving for knowledge, that we all eagerly entered astonishing projects in the Science Fair and were the best represented class there. This was also the year for us to take the traditional sophomore testing to tell us where our aptitudes and abilities lay. Many a girl was quite surprised to find that she was perfectly suited for a job as a plumber or engineer. At the end of this second year of high school, we were allowed to conduct elections for class officers, who would lead us on to fame. The campaign period was a vigorous one with posters plastered on the walls, tags fluttering from girls' pocketbooks, and lollipops issued before the campaign speeches. The results were John Ferullo, president; Paul Calderon, vice-president; Pat Ritchie, secretary; and Jim Natichioni, treasurer.

And when the summer flew by and we were all too soon back in school.

For two years, mystified, we had quietly watched the activities of the upperclassman: the long series of tests, choosing collegas, sanding in applications, and waiting for acceptances. We had seen all this, but we didn't realize the importance of it until we experienced it ourselves. But then, we were finally upperclassmen; we were juniors. The threat of college acceptances and rejections fluttered all about us. We now realize how important they were. Also, to give us a first hand knowledge of the careers or vocations we were considering, occupational conferences were held. And then we relearned the letters of the alphabet: PSAT's, NMSQT's, SAT's, and achievements seemed to be the most important and made us wonder if it was all really worth it.

But, there was a lot more to junior year than just college worries. In music appreciation we had advanced from Tony Soul as freshmen, to Ted Tusconi and the Wildmen as sophomores, to the Boosters Club's first Homecoming Dance and the I.R.C. dance with M.C.'s from WBZ as juniors. Our class celebrities included Sally Maish, who was selected as the finalist in the American Field Service Program and spent the next summer in Italy, and Bonnie Wilks, who upheld the reputation of our class in Drama Nite.

No memories of our Junior year would be complete without mentioning the Junior Prom. At the beginning of the year the class officers had selected a steering committee to aid in putting on this gala affair. For many months they met and planned the prom, and an arduous but pleasant task it was. The steering committee meetings ran long while everyone haggled over whether or not those attending the prom would like strawberries on their ice cream. (It was decided not to have the strawberries.) That year our class decided to break tradition by holding the prom out of the school for the first time. Another change was the three Grand Marches which were held to accommodate all the people on the small dance floor at the Meadows. All in all, the prom was a huge success, except for one minor difficulty. The cameras were so astonished by all the "Moonlight and Roses" beauty around them, they forgot to function correctly, and so there are very few pictures around of the best prom South High ever had. Therefore, posterity will just have to take our word for this.

The only thing left to add about junior year was the hard work we expended on our theses. We all remember well how horrified we felt when this assignment was first explained to us. How could we possibly do all that work and put it all together in one paper? But somehow or other we all managed, and marched around proudly showing off "my thesis" to everyone. However, for many of us it was not just an English thesis with which we were confronted, but a U. S. History thesis too; and somehow the due dates on both seemed to coincide. Yet, we didn't mind (much). Dedicated students like us thrived on sifting through volumes of books on the Civil War, Andrew Jackson, and President Kennedy.

WE CONQUERED. Then all of a sudden it happened! The class ahead of us had graduated and we were SENIORS! Patiently, for three years, we had watched and waited for our year of glory and now it was here. Did we deserve it? Of course we did!

How did we fare scholastically? Well, we sure had a lot of brains in our class. In all of our four years in high school, we had an outstanding number of students on both honor rolls. And then in our junior year all these people finally got recognition when they were inducted into the National Honor Society. It was the largest group ever to be inducted, and because of this some of the seats for the juniors had to be moved in behind the lesser number of seniors to fit everyone on the stage. Officers from our own class were then elected, who ably continued on the tradition of lighting candles and making speeches for the Induction ceremony. They were Gloria Anspach, president; Elizabeth Gould, vice-president, Susan Reder, recording secretary; Mary Noonan, corresponding secretary; and Lorna Fraelic, treasurer. Also, there were two semi-finalists in the National Merit Test -- Walter Perini and Marty Bregman, in addition to the many who received letter of commendation.

Did we conquer athletically? Besides brains, our class was blessed with a lot of brawn. Ever since freshman year we showed our outstanding ability with athletes such as Ralph Bowman, Don Anderson, Kevin Kimball, and Paul Nardini. In our freshman year so many boys got "F" jackets that the school had to discontinue the practice of giving them to freshmen boys in succeeding years. In sophomore year, all of the football teams our boys were on had winning seasons, showing the great prowess of our class in sports. Our sophomore team was undefeated, the J.V.'s had a winning season, and, last but not least, the varsity was Bay State Champs with such sophomores on it as Paul Nardini, Ricky Smith and Jimmy Trombi. When basketball season rolled around, our school was victorious in making the Tech Tourney with our sophomores Steve Kamin, Brad Hawkins, and Paul Calderon on the team. Junior year our class athletes were again outstanding but the famed first line in hockey comes most readily to mind -- Kevin Kimball, Don Anderson, and Ned Dowd. Also, that year the gymnastic team won the Bay State League title with many of our classmates on the squad.

As seniors, of course our boys were the mainstay for all teams, whether it was football, cross country, soccer, track, basketball, hockey, gymnastics, golf, tennis, or baseball. To mention only a few outstanding names, we list football co-captains Nardini and Smith, hockey co-captains Kimball and Anderson, and baseball co-captains Wayne Hawkins and Peter Borghi. The hockey teams had a winning season and scored the big upset of the year when it defeated first place Needham. However, the boys weren't the only athletes; our girls participated actively in sports all of their four years too. Perhaps the year's biggest thrill goes to Sally Maish whose softball team won their first game in four years. Our cheerleaders, Joanne Moresi-captain-Joanne Cattani, Maureen Donnelly, and Gail Reizner, were always there to cheer on the teams, ably aided by our majorettes under Margaret Lavalee.

Did we also conquer socially? Throughout our four years in high school, our class did an outstanding job in contributing to all class activities. Our student council representatives worked diligently to make all the dances and drives a success, and senior year they were ably led by President

Maureen Donnelly who was also the state governor for a day. Other people, who worked hard on our student publications which reported on our social functions, were Susan Pike, who was editor of the Crier which won a T and G Honor Award, and Alice Litter, editor, and Kathy Martin, assistant editor, of the Philomath, a record of this our senior year. Of course, at all the proms our girls were the prettiest, and our princesses and queen testify to this: freshman, Rosanne Agostinelli; sophomore, Mary Noonan; junior, Patricia Richie; and our own Queen Guenevere, Lindsey Goddard. In this category of sociability, we cannot forget all the foreign exchange students we were lucky to meet, helping us to widen our understanding people and cultures. There were Jens Nielson from Denmark, Teresa Perez from Peru, Haluk Ozema from Turkey, and our own beloved Jane Ford from England.

And now, we're at the close of our senior year. It has passed by quickly and happily as we were the leaders of the school. Our Senior Class officers--Bruce Swift, president; Sally Maish, vice-president; Mary MacNamara, secretary; and Jimmy Naticioni, treasurer--picked another steering committee to organize our most important class activities. First on the agenda was the Senior Class Play, Twelve Angry People. The actors of our class most effectively turned themselves into jurors as they struggled to decide the fate of a young boy accused of murder in this two-night performance. And then there was the Senior Variety Show under the able hands of producer Barry Koch and director Amy Johnson. Set against a background of a speak-easy in the 1920's with Big Sal Bronzetti as the M.C., this show was something totally new and different for us, as we went back to the generation of Bonnie and Clyde. With fast moving skits, full of hitherto unknown senior talent, to fill in between the acts, this performance never let the audience rest for a moment.

Our Senior year finally drew to a close as the most coveted awards in the whole school were announced--the High Honor Group and Leadership and Service Award.

Except for tomorrow night at graduation, tonight, June 5, 1968, is our last night together as a class. Although it is doubtful if we all could ever assemble again after this week (for there is a huge and exciting world awaiting us), let's hope we will always remember our class, the greatest one of all, the Class of 1968. We did many things of which we can always be proud and let's hope again that we will always be remembered. Each one of us can always be proud when he says, "I graduated in 1968," for, truly, WE CAME, WE SAW, and WE CONQUERED.

"Ladies and gentlemen . . . Please do not panic. This shelter is completely safe from any foreign element. Please remain calm. From time to time citizens from above will be coming down the elevator shaft . . . Also, word will be transmitted over the televiewers bringing us information from various places in the world. I stress, do not panic. We are 1500 feet below ground level and perfectly safe."

So the immortal voice of Barry Koch, artist and newscaster, opened on a grim scene of a vast bomb shelter. Periodically the elevator hisses to a halt and many familiar faces appear. The chief of police, Jimmy Trombi and his captain, Michael Smith, make sure order is kept. Marshal-in-chief Terry McCarthy is heading the operation of directing everyone to their respective quarters. The governors are moving toward their executive offices . . . Bruce Hulme of Vermont, Maureen Donnelly of Massachusetts, Christine Crowley, governor of Cape Cod, Butter Ferrari of Wisconsin, Ellie Buck, governor of Greenwich Village, and finally, successor to Howard Hughes, Greg Intinarelli, the newly elected governor of Las Vegas. They will take over control of the complex for the duration of our time in this shelter.

Other notable dignitaries entering with the governors are Cecile Derouin, ambassador to France, Jane Ford, ambassador from England, Odin Fritsvold, ambassador from Norway, Palma DeMarco, from Italy, and Olympio Araujo from Portugal.

Between announcements and the bustling and moving about in the complex, activity is resumed in the various corners of the retreat. In the northwest the refugee children are receiving their normal education from the Future Teachers Club under the direction of Marsha Muise, Susan Rosenblatt, and Veronica Bache. However, total direction of the educational system is managed by Kathy Martin, superintendent of schools, Anne Provencher, director of higher education, and Tom Levenson, illustrious and well-loved principal.

Mark sense cards are being distributed and everyone is asked to complete these for identification purposes and for clerical computations. This procedure is being attended to by Maureen Creasia, Linda Canali, Colleen Duggan, and Joanne Cattani, directors of the business department of the shelter. The cards, when completed, will be collected by the appointed couriers, Susan Reder, Susan Krailo, Elaine Belloli and other former library aides. They will then be key-punched by the typing pool instructed by Mary Leonardo, Sandy Bonasoro, Sue Tolle, Judy Gersh and Debb Verra. The world-renowned medical staff led by Amy Johnson, Richard Levy and other former Tisdell students will check all information gathered and wherever necessary will join the shelter's own Florence Nightingales, Rozanne Agostinelli, Janice Delaney and Marni Abu in ministering to the needs of the ailing inhabitants. Working diligently with the medical staff is M.I.T. graduate Marty Bregman who is trying to program a computer to cure simple nervous tension which is mounting in the complex.

The problem of lack of communication which the language barrier is causing is being remedied by the introduction of a universal language. The Latin Club, eager to be useful, has undertaken the task of teaching the entire population Latin. The immortal words of a Latin scholar have finally come true. "Lingua Latina non mortua est - Latin is not dead."

Meanwhile the industrial arts graduates, Arnold Evans, Eugene Barrows, Chris Camuso and Edmund Hall are engaged in the construction of an "arc" tangent to the kitchen complex. Within the kitchen, the former chefs' course graduate Tony Bartolini is serving as head dietician.

Again the voice of Barry Koch intervenes to dispel fear and anxiety:

"We will endeavor to maintain life as usual, and it must be remembered that man does not live by bread alone. Parties are being arranged by our social directors Val Haskins, Greg Intinarelli and Pat Ritchie. Future entertainment for your listening pleasure will be supplied by David Codd, conductor of the Boston Pops. Among the many members of the old South High band who are with the Pops we recognize Denis Sobiewski, Leslie Breed, vocalist Bud Purington and guest entertainer, David Lewis. Also, you will once again see the entire cast of the Senior Variety Show of 1968. There you will see Snoopy romping about while Richard Tarr still recites Shakespeare in blank verse. We can already hear Bruce Chaput singing protest songs, but unfortunately there might not be much left to protest against after the war. Ernie Smith is holding the greatest audience by a mixture of comedy, dramatics and flamenco dancing. In the southeast sector, Mr. Clancy's art students, now directed by Linda Johnson, are presenting an exhibition entitled, Underground Art."

Occasionally, word from the outside world is transmitted over the televiewers in various corners of the complex. Many areas of the world are still unaffected by the approaching war and many prominent people are still aboveground. We have just had an announcement that President Swift declared that if the North Vietnamese continue their invasion of southern California they will be politely asked to come to his peace table. If they refuse, he will send the International Relations Club to attempt to solve the problem. Key figure who would go with this group would be Ann Mahoney and Cathy Wismer.

In other news, the American Steering Committee has made another world-shaking decision stating that at the next National Teachers Convention Italian dressing would be substituted for Roquefort.

Again, in national news, the National Association of Student Councils has expelled all but one of its members who were inexcusably absent while in the bomb shelter.

Locally, the members of the world famous law firm of Dowd, Ballas and Ford, who recently gained the acquittal of Walter Perini on a slander charge, are presently vacationing on an obscure Cape Cod beach catching rays despite the approaching holocaust.

John Fiore, sportscaster on the televiewers has announced that at the world series held at the old landmark, Fenway Park, the Red Sox, led by slugger Wayne Hawkins, defeated player-coach Billy Dolliver's Reds in six games. It is indeed surprising to find that 80% of the 1968 Flyers should be on the rosters of these two teams. Many celebrities were in attendance to cheer their favorites, including Pat Bronzetti, Celeste Introini, Joanne Ferguson and Patti Hackett.

In other sports news, we have learned from "Jimmy" Fiore that at the world semi-final hockey playoffs at Learned's Pond, Don Anderson and Kevin Kimball led their teammates over a strong female team headed by Paula Cournoyer, Bonnie Wilkes and Dottie Crosby. Ralph Bowman, star of our noble track team recently broke the two minute mile running with ten pound ankle weights and "low blacks."

In a marathon 33 inning contest the U. S. Girls Olympic Softball team captured a titanium medal by a close score of 269 to 3. Larry Poirier place kicked the winning point for the Patriots for an upset victory at Bowditch Bowl. In a valiant effort for the opposing Minnesota Vikings John Ferullo was outstanding. Cheering for the victors, were our faithful senior cheerleaders led by Joanne Moresi; our majorettes led by Margaret Lavalley cartwheeled their way into the hearts of 50,000 spectators, former members of the Pep Squads.

In many other athletic areas the approaching war has not affected the contests. Tony Manzella, Jerry Hardy, and Kevin Abelli, tri-captains of the U.S. Gold Medal Gymnastics Team, just defeated the Israelis at their capital of Cairo.

Steven Kamin, Peter Borghi, Brad Hawkins and Paul Calderon, along with other ex-super seniors, hold a slim lead in the world volleyball championships. In a close second place are the American female contestants headed by Jeanne Bronzetti, Sally Maish, Carol Joyce, Lorna Fraelic and Linda Rotelli.

Once again the elevator hisses to a halt and more refugees from above come out of the door. Israeli Prime Minister Dan Haendel and his harem of Nancy True, Susan Bayes, Susan Pike and Elaine Svenson enter amidst much commotion. Governor Donnelly, now opposing incumbent Bruce Swift for the presidency, greets them.

Other notable individuals seen exiting from the elevator are Cindy Thistle of the Thistle Whistle Company, William Sherman of the Sherman-Williams Paint, Kathy Redmond, test driver for Tooter-Scooter Company and Luanne Peso of Pes-O-Pizza Palace.

Suddenly the tense, business-like atmosphere prevalent throughout the crisis is broken by an announcement:

"Ladies and gentlemen, we are pleased to inform you that your performance during this drill, I repeat drill, has been worthy of high praise. As I said, this event was a drill and we sincerely hope this practice will never be a reality in the future. You are now free to exit and resume your normal activities."

CLASS SONG 1968

Our day has come;
It's time for good-bye
To games lost and won,
To heroes do or die
We now leave behind
The memories of four years
That we have spent here
Our future time to cheer.

Now as we part,
We're leaving behind
Some joy from each heart
That's mellowed with the time,
For here in these halls
The laughter has rung loud
From whispers to calls
Of timid and of proud

We now await
The future ahead;
We have been well trained;
We're truly well bred,
And each of us wants
To be part of a team,
A lesson we have learned
To realize our dreams

Eager to leave
To face up to life,
Our pathways to weave
Without major strife;
Though problems may come
We can solve them we know
We feel life ahead
Will serve us in good stead.

prologue

Our yearbook is about people, all the people who filled our four years at Framingham South High School. We can only equate our thoughts and emotions with those expressed by Ernest Hemingway in his work, A Movable Feast, "... new people came deep into our lives and nothing was ever the same again."

Our teachers have guided us through the experiences recorded by history and literature, but there is more to learning than formal instruction. Associations are necessary for personal development. Our individual development has been stimulated by guidance counselors, athletic coaches and instructors. Their united efforts have taught us to seek perfection in ourselves without destroying the strength and value of group harmony.

We can find no better symbol for our cover than the tree—the tree of life, the embodiment of our development nurtured by so many people.

With helpful suggestions and patient understanding, Mary McDuffie has conscientiously guided our class. Her sparkling humor and calm resolution have inspired and sustained us during our four years in high school. With much admiration and great respect, we the class of 1968 dedicate our yearbook to this teacher who is herself so dedicated.

Catherine Clifford began her career as a teacher of English in North Brookfield, Massachusetts, and came to Framingham from Penakook, New Hampshire. Mrs. Clifford taught English in Framingham for twenty years until 1948. She returned to teaching in 1957 and continued to distinguish herself as a dedicated teacher. This year Mrs. Clifford is retiring—from teaching only, never from the memory of her students.

John Daniels came to Framingham in 1925, after four years of teaching in Newport, New Hampshire. In addition to teaching social studies here, he coached many football and basketball seasons. In 1945, he became the Director of Athletics, a position he has enjoyed ever since. Mr. Daniels has dedicated forty-three years of his life to Framingham students. The many services he has rendered to both our social studies and athletic departments shall be remembered long after this year of his retirement.

George Keville, originally a native of Massachusetts, began his teaching career in New York City in 1921. Returning to Massachusetts in 1924, Mr. Keville became a member of the faculty at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester and later taught at Emmanuel College in Boston. In 1950, he began his career in Framingham. After eighteen years of devoted service to Framingham students, Mr. Kerville is retiring this year. We shall always remember him for his fine teaching of social studies and English.

Alice Stanton began teaching in 1930, in Wilmington, Massachusetts. Coming to Framingham seven years later, Miss Stanton was a member of the business department at Framingham High School and later a member of that same department at Framingham South. After thirty-one years of teaching some 5,000 or more Framingham high school students, Miss Stanton is retiring this year. She will always be held in the highest esteem by those many students whom she has influenced during her long career as a business teacher.

principal's address

To the members of the Class of 1968:

You are now graduates of Framingham South High School, Class of 1968. You attended this school during a period of great general prosperity, but with real poverty in certain areas. There exists a condition of apathy or indifference on the part of many individuals, organizations, and agencies toward major problems and issues, such as elections, budget issues, crime on our streets, foreign policies and crippling strikes in industry by government employees.

However, conditions are not as bad as they are made to appear by the press and radio and from the speaker's platform. Because our means of communication are more highly developed and sophisticated today, we are informed instantly of each incident and event at the local, state, national and international levels. Such speed lends itself to overemphasis, leading people to feel that conditions today are much worse than those of the past. This is not true.

If our citizens both young and old will continue to believe in and practice respect for all lawful authority, these problems will be as satisfactorily resolved as they have been in the past. Be assured of this. As it is inevitable that human beings will make mistakes, it follows that authorities, whether individual or governmental, will err. But if our form of government is to survive, rules, regulations and laws are necessary and must be obeyed.

"To Strive is To Accomplish" is your school motto. I feel sure that the Class of 1968 will strive and accomplish much in future years. Your country looks to you, the fine citizens, workers and leaders of tomorrow to build a better world for all of us. We have confidence that you will do it.

Sincerely yours,

Ralph J. Martin

The 1968 varsity football team, under the direction of Coach Bob Jachowicz and with Co-Captains Paul Nardini and Ricky Smith, won four games and lost five. Although South has had more successful football seasons in the past, it has never had a harder working or a more spirited team. These boys fought hard and well. As shown by the very close scores, North and Natick had slim victories—each won by only a touchdown.

Under the direction of Coach Bruce Grealey and with Co-Captains Paul Caulderon and Steve Kamin, the 1968 varsity basketball team won thirteen of its nineteen games. Undoubtedly the most satisfying of the thirteen victories involved Framingham North and Natick. The North team suffered defeat twice at the hands of these boys and Natick once, winning a second contest by just one point.

Sally's Italian home . . . family

walk together,

My stay last summer in Torino, Italy, as an Americans Abroad exchange student was the most memorable and exciting experience of my life.

When I first applied for A.F.S., I didn't fully realize what two months in a foreign home would be like. Then, when I was accepted, I wondered whether I could do what was expected of me in two short months.

Yet I had a wonderful summer with my family and learned more about Italy, her language and customs, than I ever could if I had come simply as a visitor. My sisters, brother, Mama, and Papa all opened their hearts as well as their home to me, and I will never forget them and what they did.

As my stay grew closer to its end, I began to understand how truly wonderful the American Field Service Program is. I know it is the most worthwhile organization for high school students today. It is surprising that the Italians do not know nearly as much about America as we know about their nation. By sending students overseas, the A.F.S. helps to increase understanding and to establish better relations among nations. The main theme of A.F.S.:

Walk together, talk together,

O ye peoples of the earth.

Then, and only then, shall ye have peace, is truly a firm basis for world peace and understanding.

talk together...

Jane's own family

When I read former A.F.S. students' accounts of their year in America, I found that much of what they enjoyed and experienced was true for me also.

The opportunity I have been given, of living and working in America as a part of this country, is one that I shall always be grateful for and never forget. Without the help and friendship of my really wonderful American family and school this experience could not possibly have been all that it was. Even now, I dread the thought of returning home and saying good-bye to a year of my life, a year of new friendships, getting up early, football games, snow, beautiful scenery, and many, many other memories. At the same time, I cannot wait for my first chance to tell everyone in England, and any other country I am likely to visit, of the hospitality shown me during my year's stay in the United States.

All that remains is for me to thank everyone as much as I know how. I hope that perhaps one day I will be able to return some of your generosity although I could never equal it.

Mark Antony said, "I come to bury Caesar, not to praise him!"

This Crier reporter says, "I come not to bury the Track Team, but to praise it."

Do any of you know what a winning Track Team looks like? Would you like to see one? Because we, at South, have one! Some of the more illustrious members: "Chipper" D'Alesandro is 4/10's of a second away of a fifteen point lead. In exclusive personal interviews with the team members and the Coach, this reporter saw a great deal of Coach Bob Bell's hockey team came off to a good beginning with two wins, but then lost four consecutive games, but now it seems as if the Flyers have picked up where they had left off and have, as of this printing, won their last two games. The team, co-captained by Don Anderson and Kevin Kimball, are now left with a 4-4 BSL record.

In their opener against Milton, South pulled out a 5-3 come from behind win in the third period goals by Dowd, Co-Capt. Anderson and John Garvey. Mil-Whiz Kids led into second period, 2-0, but Flyers soon equalled it two goals by Martyey on an assist by sophomore Chris Kimball, er to Co-Capt. Kevin ball, who scored the goal.

er their second en-er, the Flyers remain-defeated with a 5-1 vic-over the Spartans from ingham North. It took almost a full period t uncorked thanks partly tough defense thrown the upset minded Spar-

The new line of John Garvey, Don Anderson, and Ned Dowd finally gave South the lead with Anderson sliding a centering pass across to Garvey, past goalie Alan Whittemore to give the team a 1-0 lead. The Flyers held a lead that was to weather through two full periods of hard hitting hockey before the Flyers had a chance to pull even. A combined passing effort on the part of Kris Kimball and Grinley set up Dick O'Connor for a shot into Walpole's goal but later Walpole scored again.

Next, Needham defeated the Flyers 7-1 with an explosive sophomore from Needham, Robbie Forek. John Garvey scored South's lone goal.

Coach Bob Bell shifted Co-Capt. Kevin Kimball from defense to the first line along with Anderson and Dowd. Kimball responded with a sensational five-goal, one-assist performance to spark the Flyer sextet to a stunning 6-3 win over previously unbeaten Norwood. The sixth goal was shot by Ned Dowd.

Again South won against Wellesley 4-0 with two goals by Kevin Kimball and two other goals by Anderson and sophomore Jay Abelli. 71 scored 7.1 on the high bar and Glenn Malloy clinched first place in vaulting by scoring and outstanding 9.2. Coaches George Wheeler

president's address

The last four high school years have occasioned the end of our lives as children and the beginning of our lives as adults. They stand as the symbol of our transition from a sheltered, naive, and self-centered existence to an independent, knowledgeable, and meaningful one. In them we changed, developed and ripened both personally and academically into responsible and vibrant young adults. We constructed a solid and mature foundation in body and mind, and we discarded a juvenile one. We grew up in character, values, and ability.

High school did its most meaningful work in the subtle molding of our personalities. Here, through the dynamic experiences provided by the school — the conflicts, trials, challenges, accomplishments, and joys — we have found and matured ourselves. We have built our character into something of integrity, and we have formed our outlook on life into something realistic and noble. We have developed faith, confidence, and pride in both ourselves and our ideas. We have gained the courage to support and defend them. We have learned how to discipline ourselves and attain goals on our own initiative. We have been taught how to make and form our own decisions and opinions objectively and ethically. High school has changed our childish idealism to realism; it has shown us what truly lies ahead; and it has made us aware of our world and our position in it. Altogether, this school has shown us our potential and has taught us how to use it in the best possible way.

In addition to this shaping of our personalities, the last four years have also brought about our academic and cultural birth. High school has started us on a quest for learning and experience and given us the basic abilities to find full and successful lives. It has taught us how to observe, understand, evaluate, hypothesize, substantiate with facts and theorize, and through trial and error it has shown us the value of this scientific method. We have learned how to express ourselves and thus have been taught the worth of creativity and originality. High school has shown us the importance of courage, independence, and perseverance in personal and academic pursuits as well as the necessity of cooperation, sacrifice, and compromise in social ventures. It has started us off on a search for purpose and fulfillment in life. Altogether, the last four years of high school have prepared us for the major trials of our adult world; now we must contend with them.

What's the Company like anyway? Would I be proud to work there? Reputation for square dealing with employees? Pleasant surroundings?

Will I be working with others my own age? Are they friendly? Do they socialize after hours?

Will the boss be reasonable? Appreciate good, hard work, but won't explode if I make a mistake?

Will I make a decent week's pay? Have a chance for raises, advancement, more responsibility? How about fringe benefits?

Is the work challenging? I had what it takes to get through high school. Will they give me a chance to use my brains?

Note: Many young men and women in this area can answer "Yes" to these questions. They work for New England Telephone.

Why not talk with our employment interviewer soon . . . before you graduate? Ask your Guidance Counselor to tell you when and where to apply.

ah!

"Almighty Swami."

"Sadie will never catch me!"

Congratulations to the Class of 1968

We know the sigh of relief that comes at the end of your final exam. Long years of study behind you, and a big wide world ahead.

But even at that it isn't the final test — or the end of your learning. The biggest tests still face you in the choice and fulfillment of your life's work.

Many plan for college, some must reckon with the armed forces. Others will seek positions in industry, trade, business. We, at Dennison, congratulate you on your past accomplishments; if your future plans call for steady employment or summer work, we'll be glad to discuss your problems with you.

Our Employment Department will welcome the chance to outline opportunities existing in our offices, factory, and warehouse.

DENNISON

Best Wishes to the Class of 1968
